

Findis

Findis and Irimë are daughters of Finwë, king of the Noldor and Indis. Findis was the first child of Finwë and Indis, and Irimë was the third one. Little is known about them except that Findis was "more like her mother" and that she stayed with Indis and Finarfin in Valinor, while Irimë went to Middle-earth with Fingolfin.

Irimë may have been the mother of Aranwë, who was in turn the father of Voronwë. The privileged positions of Glorfindel and Ecthelion of the Fountain may mean that they were of high birth, and so at least one may be the child of either Irimë or Findis.
