

=Ulmo=

Ulmo is the Lord of Waters and King of the Sea. He is alone and moves freely around the waters of the world. He is next in might to Manwë.

Ulmo will seldom come to the counsels of Valar, and doesn't love to walk on land. Seldom does he clothe himself as the other Valar do. He is described as a mounting wave that strides to the land, with dark helm foam-crested and raiment of mail shimmering from silver down to shadows of green." He has a deep voice, and loves Elves and Men. At times he will make music on his great horns, the Ulumúri, which are wrought of white shell. Those who hear it long for the sea. He speaks to those who dwell in Middle Earth as the music of water, and the Elves say that the spirit of Ulmo runs in all veins of the worlds, so news comes to Ulmo of all the needs and griefs of Arda, which would otherwise be hidden from Manwë.

